EXPERIENCE

Maura Rees is a partner at Wilson Sonsini Goodrich & Rosati, which she joined in 1997. Her practice focuses on complex intellectual property and commercial litigation. Her copyright litigation experience has included representing Google in litigation relating to generative artificial intelligence and YouTube in matters involving alleged infringement by user videos, including defenses under the Digital Millennium Copyright Act (DMCA). Maura also has extensive experience in litigating patent infringement matters involving standards-essential patents (SEPs) and FRAND licensing, including matters in U.S. District Courts, the Delaware Court of Chancery, the International Trade Commission (ITC), and international arbitrations.

Maura's patent litigation cases have involved such diverse technologies as modems, graphics processors, cellular connectivity, and web server software. She has also litigated matters for internet platform clients relying on defenses under Section 230 of the Communications Decency Act, and has defended consumer class actions for technology clients relating to claims of false advertising, unfair competition and antitrust violations, copyright infringement, and data breaches.
