EXPERIENCE

Edward Holman is senior counsel in the San Francisco office of Wilson Sonsini Goodrich & Rosati, where his practice focuses on privacy, data security, online advertising, and general marketing practices. His experience includes representing clients ranging in size from small, privately funded start-ups to large, global public companies.

Edward has advised and successfully defended dozens of companies in connection with complex privacy, data security, advertising, and other related investigations by the Federal Trade Commission (FTC), Federal Communications Commission (FCC), Senate and House congressional committees, state attorneys general, international data protection regulators, and self-regulatory organizations. He also advises numerous high tech clients on privacy risks for proposed products, features, and data sharing agreements regarding online services, apps, and connected devices, including how to implement practical privacy by design solutions and how best to collect, protect, and use consumer data in line with both their business interests and ever-evolving legal requirements and best practices. He also helps companies respond to security breaches and ensure the adequacy of their privacy and data security practices in light of emerging global privacy regulations, including the European General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR) and the California Consumer Privacy Act (CCPA). The International Association of Privacy Professionals (IAPP) has designated Edward as a Certified Information Privacy Professional for the United States private sector (CIPP/US).

From 2009 to 2018, Edward was an associate and counsel in Wilson Sonsini's Washington, D.C., office. Prior to rejoining the firm, he was Associate General Counsel, Global Privacy at Tesla in Palo Alto, California, where he advised the company on all aspects of its international privacy compliance efforts. Prior to attending law school, Edward co-founded and managed an award-winning combination cybercafé and retail game store in Berkeley, California.
