EXPERIENCE

Sarah (Siedlak) Walker is an associate in the technology transactions practice in Wilson Sonsini Goodrich & Rosati's San Diego office. Her practice focuses on the life sciences and medical device industries, representing companies in various intellectual property and commercial transactions. Sarah has also represented life sciences, medical device, and software companies in patent infringement disputes, including Hatch-Waxman litigation.

Sarah represents the San Diego office on the firm's Associates Committee and Women of Wilson affinity group.

During law school, Sarah interned at Case Western Reserve University School of Law's Intellectual Property Venture Clinic, where she represented start-up companies and focused on business and intellectual property matters such as drafting patent applications, forming corporate entities, and negotiating patent licenses.
