EXPERIENCE

Salil Gandhi is a partner in the New York office of Wilson Sonsini Goodrich & Rosati and a co-leader of the firm's emerging companies practice. Salil focuses on corporate and securities law and specializes in the representation of emerging growth companies throughout their lifecycles, particularly in the life sciences and technology sectors. He also counsels venture capital funds and other private equity funds on structuring and executing investment transactions ranging from angel to control investments, as well as portfolio dispositions.

Prior to joining the firm, Salil was a partner at Goodwin's technology and life sciences group. Additionally, he has served as Counsel at Gunderson Detmer and had started his career at Paul Weiss. As an entrepreneur, Salil previously served as head of content acquisition and director of business and legal affairs for Joost (acquired by Adconian Media Group), an internet content distribution. He also co-founded Crybaby Media, a content development and creative packaging firm.
