EXPERIENCE

Cristina Mora is a litigation associate in the Palo Alto office of Wilson Sonsini Goodrich & Rosati, where she focuses on complex litigation. Cristina represents transformational technology companies that revolutionize the way we live, work, and interact with one another. Her legal practice also includes civil and human rights, racial justice, and public policy.

During law school, Cristina worked at the East Bay Community Law Center – Consumer Justice Clinic, where she advocated for low-income clients regarding consumer-related issues. During her time at the clinic, she contributed to passing AB 2463, which prevents home foreclosures that stem from unsecure consumer debts. She was an executive board member for both the California Law Review and the Berkeley Technology Law Journal, the top-ranked technology law journal in the country. As a first-year law student, Cristina won Berkeley School of Law's moot court oral competition and earned a position on the Philip C. Jessup moot court team. Cristina also externed for the Honorable Rozella A. Oliver of the U.S. District Court for the Central District of California.

Prior to law school, Cristina earned a graduate degree from the L'Institut d'Etudes Politiques de Paris, where her research focused on the European Union's fiscal decentralization model and the EU's 2009 financial recession.
