EXPERIENCE

Alexander (Alex) Miller is an associate in the Seattle office of Wilson Sonsini Goodrich and Rosati. His practice primarily focuses on patent litigation and intellectual property. Alex has represented clients in a wide variety of industries, including software, artificial intelligence, cybersecurity, consumer electronics, medical devices, and material sciences. He has been part of multiple successful trial teams and has secured favorable outcomes for clients.

Prior to attending law school, Alex was a software engineer at Thomson Reuters, where he developed customized tax and accounting applications. As part of this role, he also maintained and secured customer databases containing sensitive user data.
