EXPERIENCE

Stacy Okoro is an associate in the New York office of Wilson Sonsini Goodrich & Rosati, where she is a member of the firm's privacy and cybersecurity practice. Stacy advises clients across industries on consumer protection and data protection best practices, complex regulatory enforcement actions, risk management strategies, national regulatory compliance, and product development.

Stacy advises clients in a variety of industries on complex data privacy and artificial intelligence issues related to local, global, and industry-specific legal frameworks, including the state privacy laws, such as the California Consumer Protection Act (CCPA); state artificial intelligence laws, such as CO AIA; children's privacy and minor online safety laws, such as the Children's Online Privacy Protection Act (COPPA); the Gramm-Leach-Bliley Act (GLBA); the Fair Credit Reporting Act (FCRA); the Biometric Information Privacy Act (BIPA); and the Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act (HIPAA).

In particular, Stacy has assisted clients in developing privacy policies and procedures, negotiating data processing agreements, guiding regulatory strategy, advising on product development and design, and supporting corporate negotiations.

Stacy also maintains a robust pro bono practice, including advocating for asylum applicants, domestic violence survivors, and nonprofit organizations.
