EXPERIENCE

Nadia Senter is an associate in the San Francisco office of Wilson Sonsini Goodrich & Rosati, where she is part of the firm's energy and climate solutions practice. Nadia advises clients on regulatory and state renewable energy program compliance, and on the development of renewable energy policies at the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission and state regulatory commissions. She also has experience negotiating a variety of project development agreements for clients in the solar, wind, electric vehicle charging, energy storage, and energy efficiency industries.

During law school, Nadia worked as a law clerk at the California Public Utilities Commission and conducted research on California offshore wind development at the Berkeley Law Center for Law, Energy and the Environment. She also served as the leader and co-founder of Clean Energy Leaders in Law, a student-led pro bono project that offers legal support for low-income and community solar development. She holds a certificate of specialization from Berkeley Law in Energy and Clean Technology Law.
