Wilson Sonsini is one of only a few firms that can say, without qualification, it represents the most sophisticated and progressive companies in the world in litigation, regulatory, and transactional matters.

Wilson Sonsini represents clients that achieve success by innovating, venturing beyond boundaries, or disrupting established industries. As a result, the disputes and contentious matters Wilson Sonsini takes on for its clients involve formative and complex technologies, novel issues of law, and substantial amounts in controversy.

Wilson Sonsini has more than 200 litigators across the firm, and continues to expand. Since March 2020, the firm has added 11 partners to its litigation department in California alone.

In December 2021, Wilson Sonsini was profiled among the select firms that earned honorable mentions as part of The American Lawyer’s national “Litigation Department of the Year” awards. Earlier in the year, The American Lawyer also selected the firm as a 2021 regional Litigation Department of the Year finalist for California.

The depth and dimension of Wilson Sonsini’s litigation practice enables the firm to represent clients in disputes that range from bet-the-company claims asserted by competitors to class actions involving multiple parties and multiple states. Our expansive scope of litigation experience covers areas of critical importance to clients, including intellectual property, securities, and complex commercial lawsuits, as well as government investigations and corporate governance matters.
Wilson Sonsini delivers results for its clients, which is just one reason the firm's litigation department has a well-earned reputation for excellence among its clients, peers, and colleagues.
