OVERVIEW

Practice Dimension and Scope

Wilson Sonsini has an experienced team of attorneys, including former federal prosecutors and agency enforcement lawyers, who have represented companies and individuals under investigation for, or charged with, alleged violations of business-related federal and state criminal law.

Our attorneys have assisted clients facing all types of inquiries. For example, we have represented clients in informal inquiries involving purported errors and omissions and compliance matters, advising on initial fact-finding efforts, including responding to letters of inquiry or subpoenas. We have also represented clients in formal, official investigations, including parallel criminal and civil proceedings involving potentially significant financial penalties, loss of freedom, or other severe consequences.

We have defended clients facing various types of allegations, including:

- Fraud (including accounting, securities, tax, healthcare, immigration, and mortgage fraud)
- Price-fixing, bid-rigging, or other antitrust claims
- Corruption and bribery charges
- Consumer fraud claims
- Anti-kickback and whistleblower statute violations
- Academic fraud claims

- Export controls violations
- Foreign Corrupt Practices Act (FCPA) violations
- National security-related matters

Collectively, our attorneys have represented clients before all federal enforcement agencies, including the Department of Justice (DOJ), the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC), Federal Trade Commission (FTC), Commodity Futures Trading Commission (CFTC), Internal Revenue Service (IRS), and Financial Industry Regulatory Authority (FINRA). Our attorneys have also represented clients in conjunction with criminal probes led by various state attorneys general.

Generally, the types of clients who retain our representation in white collar criminal matters include corporate officers and executives, board directors, and other principals. In many cases, we have represented individuals who conduct business in highly competitive industries, including the technology, financial, pharmaceutical, energy, consumer, food, and retail sectors.

Investigations Experience

Wilson Sonsini has an experienced team of attorneys who have represented individuals in conjunction with government and internal investigations, including inquiries related to criminal allegations. We have assisted clients during all phases, from initial inquiries through the completion of investigations, as well as during any post-investigation proceedings or compliance obligations.

For more information about our investigations experience, please see our Government Investigations practice summary, or our Board and Internal Investigations practice summary.

Highly Relevant Subject-Matter Experience

Throughout its existence, Wilson Sonsini has had a sustained, robust transactional practice. That factor, combined with the heightened level of regulatory scrutiny, has given the firm's attorneys the opportunity to amass particular expertise in the following areas:

Financial and Accounting Fraud Matters and Investigations

Wilson Sonsini's attorneys have represented companies and their officers and directors in financial and accounting fraud matters and investigations, including inquiries related to accounting fraud allegations, restatements, financial reporting errors, disclosure issues, potential insider trading violations, and potential Foreign Corrupt Practices Act (FCPA) violations. In a majority of cases, matters involved the SEC and/or DOJ; however, Wilson Sonsini's attorneys have also represented clients during inquiries led by other enforcement agencies.

Foreign Corrupt Practices Act

The firm's investigations attorneys have gained significant experience representing clients in FCPA matters. In addition to designing and implementing comprehensive compliance programs, as well as training company representatives on FCPA compliance, our attorneys conduct internal FCPA investigations and risk assessments, advise on possible FCPA violations, and analyze related laws in foreign jurisdictions. When required, we also represent clients in enforcement actions and litigation involving FCPA and corruption issues. Finally, our investigations attorneys also conduct FCPA and anti-corruption due diligence investigations in conjunction with mergers, acquisitions, financings, and initial public offerings.

Antitrust - Civil Enforcement Investigations (FTC and DOJ)

Our attorneys have represented clients before the FTC and DOJ in connection with civil non-merger investigations for several years. We represent companies' interests before both agencies, either in connection with investigations into business practices or in assisting the agencies when investigating the conduct of others. For more information, please see our list of representative matters in this area.

Antitrust - Criminal Enforcement Investigations

We have successfully counseled clients on criminal antitrust issues and represented numerous companies and individuals in investigations and grand jury proceedings. Our team of antitrust and investigations practitioners have substantial experience handling international investigations, and we routinely represent foreign companies and executives before the DOJ and other competition bodies. For more information, please see our list of representative matters in this area.

Agency and Regulatory Experience

Criminal enforcement efforts and government investigations cause individuals defendants substantial disruption and pressure, regardless of the veracity of allegations. There is also the prospect of significant damage to one's reputation and overall well-being. The consequences of civil or criminal liability are infinitely serious for individual defendants. In short, individuals charged with allegations of wrongdoing depend heavily on proven, experienced legal counsel throughout the course of civil and/or criminal proceedings.
