In a recent edition of The Lawyer's Partnerless, a weekly email for associates, Wilson Sonsini's Jose Campos shared insights into his successful legal career and recent promotion to partner. He attributes much of his success to his move from the USA to London, which allowed him to tackle more cross-border matters and engage with the distinctive challenges of the London market. With dual qualifications in California and England & Wales, Campos has significantly broadened his transaction opportunities and can draw on diverse experiences to provide innovative client solutions. Although he initially had concerns about the partnership transition, he highlights the value of collaboration and support among colleagues, encouraging others in similar roles to leverage their partnerships for shared ideas and guidance.
