EXPERIENCE

Ken Sanocki is a partner at Wilson Sonsini Goodrich & Rosati, where his practice focuses on a broad range of structured and project finance transactions in the energy sector. Ken has extensive experience in tax equity, tax credit transfers, construction financing, securitizations, and other structured financings, particularly for portfolios of distributed energy resources, and he applies this experience for clients pursuing the development of energy asset classes with commercial, industrial, and institutional customers, as well as community solar and utility-scale energy generators.

Prior to joining the firm, Ken was vice president of legal at Sunrun, where he oversaw all project finance legal matters, including tax equity financings, tax credit sale agreements, securitizations, warehouse facilities, and other complex debt facilities. At Sunrun, Ken led more than 50 tax equity financings totaling over $10 billion, drafting all necessary documents and deliverables and generally managing all legal aspects of such financings. Ken previously served as the company's deputy general counsel, assistant general counsel, and senior counsel.

Earlier in his career, Ken was senior counsel for global structured and project finance at SunEdison and a project finance associate at Milbank.

Ken is admitted in New York. He is not yet admitted to practice in California and therefore not authorized to practice law in California.
